Though in these days no quaint cus Though in these days no quaint custems are associated with Easter except in the remotest parts, it will be caroled with scheep of joy and praise in all churches and by all creeds. The voice of God speaks in the resurrection of the things in the earth, the beauty of the blooming flowers, the verdant fields and serouting trees. sprouting trees.

The past few weeks have been strange-In past lew weeks have been stangerly mixed with devotions and the pomps and vanities of this world, and milady will go forth to the sanctuary this morning in bright array, fashioned after the latest style by her modiste. But the baster festivities extend throughout the whole week, and dances, teas, receptions, cards, dining parties and golf will engage the attention of all who, after the six weeks of comparative rest, hall with delight the whirl of social functions which are on the calendar for this week, and which will be attended by all in the freshest of costumes and the smartest

Easter egg hunts will engage the little ones and the school children, and there are hunts scheduled for every day, so the little tots will not be disappointed if the weather man sends them a few April showers. Then there are arranged by thoughtful mothers several private parties for the youngest of the family, at which Master Bunny will be in evidence.

The Johns Hopkins Glee Club will make merry at the Woman's Club Monday night, and will prove one of the social attractions for that night. Besides the Glee Club, the Banjo and Mandolin Club will be here, and a merrier lot of boys and brighter music has not been in the city for ages. They come as if to sing society out of the quietude of Lent. Among the patronesses for this entertainment, which is under the auspices of the Belle Bryan Circle of King's Daughters, who work for the Shertering Arms Hospital, are Mrs. John Harrison, Mrs. W. H. Tatum, Miss Lelia Tatum, Mrs. George Wayne Anderson, Mrs. Lindsay Mrs. George Ainslie, Mrs. Preston Cocke, Mrs. Thomas Ruthfoord, Mrs. Robert Bosher, Mrs. Grace Shields, Mrs. Henry Williams, Mrs. Charles Whitlock, Mrs Beverly Crump, Mrs. Harry Hazard, Mrs. Moses D. Easter Lilies No More Beautiful Than Our Delightful Costumes.

Of the many attractions at this store absolute freedom of customers stands at the head of the list; therefore our patrons are enabled to look upon our assortment of the world's freshest merchandise as upon an exhibition. There is no compulsion to buy enforced upon any one. In our exhibit of this week the first great feature is our

which has already called forth universal commendation, once again lifting us up to the summit in the millinery world for INDIVIDUALITY OF STYLE and ARTISTIC CREATIONS in TRIMMED HEADGEAR. This is the true keynote to our success as leaders in millinery in the South. Even a casual observer will recognize the superiority of productions, from the hands of our artists, over ordinary millinery produced by those who have not cultivated the art.

We show you this week fully two hundred designs, no two of them alike, and furthermore we have made the prices interesting.

Notice Our Special Trimmed Hats at $5, $7.50. $10.

Our Suits are also a strong feature with us, for it has ever been our aim, and we have accomplished our point, in getting the same individuality of style, magnificence of fit and refinement of finish, that are to be seen in the salons of the exclusive men-tailoring establishments with their excessive charges, for we, too, show you the complete copies of the imported models; but where our success has been obtained is in the very moderateness of our prices, being less than half man-tailored figures. Here are a few samples of serviceable Spring Suits rightly priced. At $12.00 Suit of best quality Venetian or broadcloth, in double-breasted Eton effect, silk lined jacket, whole Suit elaborately trimmed in stitched silk bands.
